

James C. Gaither Junior Fellows Program
2017-2018

Applications must be received by: January 13, 2017

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace is a unique global network of policy research centers in Russia, China, Europe, the Middle East, India, and the United States. Our mission, dating back more than a century, is to advance the cause of peace through analysis and development of fresh policy ideas and direct engagement and collaboration with decision-makers in government, business and civil society. Working together, our centers bring the inestimable benefit of multiple national viewpoints to bilateral, regional and global issues.

The James C. Gaither Junior Fellows Program at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace is designed to provide a substantive work experience for students who have a serious career interest in the area of international affairs. Approximately 12 students will be hired to work as employees at Carnegie in Washington, DC on a full-time basis for a period of one year.

ASSIGNMENTS: Gaither Junior Fellows provide research assistance to scholars working on Carnegie Endowment's projects, listed below. They have the opportunity to conduct research, contribute to op-eds, papers, reports, and books, edit documents, participate in meetings with high-level officials, contribute to congressional testimony and organize briefings attended by scholars, activists, journalists and government officials.

QUALIFICATIONS: Applicants must be nominated by an official of their university or institution who has been designated for this purpose (usually the career placement officer, fellowship advisor or an academic department chairperson). A listing of participating institutions and nominating officials may be found at <http://carnegieendowment.org/about/jr-fellows>. Applications are accepted only from graduating college seniors or individuals who have graduated within the past academic year. No one will be considered who has started graduate studies (except those who have recently completed a joint bachelor's/master's degree program).

Applicants should have completed a significant amount of course work related to their discipline of interest. Language and other skills may also be required for certain assignments. The selection process for the program is very competitive. Accordingly, applicants should be of high academic quality.

Qualifications for Gaither Junior Fellows may vary by program. Please review the bulletin for program requirements and more information on what each program is looking for.

APPLICATION PROCESS: All application materials must be received by the program on or before Friday, January 13th. Colleges/universities generally set earlier deadlines internally. Applicants should consult their designated nominating official concerning nominations, since no university may nominate more than two students each year. Finalists in the selection process will be interviewed by video in the spring. Selection decisions are generally made in mid-March and no later than March 31st.

DURATION: All fellowships begin on August 1, 2016. Gaither Junior Fellows are hired for a period of approximately one year.

SALARY AND HOUSING: The monthly salary is $3,200.00 (equivalent to $39,000 annually) subject to federal, state and local taxes. A generous benefits package is provided, including medical, dental and life insurance as well as vacation leave. Gaither Junior Fellows are responsible for their own housing arrangements.

All of the following must be received via the designated nominating official no later than January 13th:

- Application form.
- An essay of one page or less, double-spaced on why the student would like to become a junior fellow.
- Resume/C.V. (preferably 1-2 pages)
- Two letters of recommendations. These recommendations can come from anyone the student feels can best speak to their abilities as a potential Gaither Junior Fellow.
- Transcript of undergraduate records. The transcript may be unofficial.
- An essay of no more than three (3) typewritten, double-spaced pages on one of the following topics. These topics are intended to test skills in analysis, logic, and written expression. The essays should be analytical thought pieces, not research papers. Students should submit an essay related to their primary research program interests, although the James C. Gaither Junior Fellows Program may ultimately select an applicant for a program outside of his/her designated primary interest or make an assignment to more than one program.

Applicants must respond to the question pertaining to the program to which they are applying.

- A. Democracy and Rule of Law Program. There is an intense and ever-growing debate within and among many countries over whether it is legitimate for outside actors (governmental as well as nongovernmental actors) to fund civil society organizations within a country. Set forward and elaborate what you believe are the strongest arguments in favor of and opposed to the view that foreign funding for civil society is legitimate. Be sure to consider different types of civil society activities and organizations that might receive such funding.
- B. Executive Office. Looking out over the first term of the new U.S. administration, what are the prospects for the Iran nuclear deal? Please write a memo that outlines the trends in Iran, the region, and the United States that are likely to affect implementation and identify the policy implications for the new administration.
- C. Nuclear Policy Program. Which state without nuclear weapons do you believe is at most risk of acquiring them?
- D. Cyber Policy Initiative. Name and discuss five attributes of cyber weapons that make them unique from other types of weapons.
- E. Energy and Climate Program. Given the national commitments made under the Paris climate agreement, what next steps would you recommend for the oil sector?
- F. Middle East Program. The Middle East region is going through a huge, agonizing and protracted transformation characterized by failing governance structures, rising extremism and sectarianism, weak institutions, high unemployment, poor education and the return of status quo forces resistant to reform and inclusion. The current situation has enabled non-state actors such as the Islamic State to emerge and spread a new toxic ideology of hate and violence. What do you see as one of the most difficult threats facing the region today? Discuss the impact this has had on two countries in the region and strategies that will help move these countries toward a better future.

- G. South Asia Program. (Please respond to just ONE of the two following questions). In the 21st century, can manufacturing be the solution to employment generation in populous developing countries? OR Under what conditions is a military response an effective solution to transnational terrorism?
- H. China Studies (Asia Program). The history of the interaction between a rising power and an existing great power suggests that the chances are high of a war occurring between the two. Does history in fact suggest that China, as a rising power, and the United States, as an existing great power, will more likely go to war than not? Use both references to history and the Sino-U.S. situation to support your argument.
- I. Japan Studies (Asia Program). Prime Minister Abe's government has pursued a variety of reforms to its defense and security policies, including revising the National Defense Program Guidelines, creating a new structure for the National Security Council, developing a National Security Strategy, reinterpreting its ability to exercise the right of collective self-defense, and passing new legislation to reflect these changes. What are the key political and strategic drivers behind this push, what are the moderating factors, and what is important for U.S. policy makers to understand as they consider how to respond/react (balancing national security needs with regional foreign policy priorities)?
- J. Economics (Asia Program). China is now experiencing a slowdown in economic growth. Is this likely to persist and what are the implications for the Asia region and for the US?
- K. Russia/Eurasia Program. The U.S.-Russia relationship has plummeted to unprecedented post-Cold War lows. Can this downward trajectory be arrested? What are the key dangers in the current situation and how might the incoming U.S. Administration seek to prevent things from getting out of hand?

All of the above materials should be forwarded by the designated university nominating official or their staff by January 13, 2017 to:

jrfellowinfo@ceip.org

Note: The best practice for submitting application is to send one email per application. Please combine all of the materials for each application into a single PDF file.

Questions concerning the above requirements and the James C. Gaither Junior Fellows Program should be addressed to Christopher Grider in Human Resources at (202) 939-2308 or jrfellowinfo@ceip.org. Students should contact their institution's nominating official with questions.

Frequently Asked Questions

When is the Gaither Junior Fellows application information sent to participating universities?

The program generally sends information to participating universities by the first week of October each year. Information is updated annually and essay topics change from year to year.

Does my school participate in the Gaither Junior Fellows Program?

Visit our list of participating universities and programs.

How can I apply if my school is not a participating university?

You are encouraged to ask your career placement office to contact us to find out how your school may participate.

Must applicants be U.S. citizens?

It depends. You need not be a U.S. citizen if you attend a university located in the United States. However, all applicants must be eligible to work in the United States for a full 12 months from approximately August 1 through July 31 following graduation. Students on F-1 visas who are eligible to work in the U.S. for the full year may apply for the program.

If you attend a participating school outside of the United States, you must be a U.S. citizen (due to work permit requirements).

Am I eligible for the Gaither Junior Fellows Program?

Applicants must be graduating seniors or students who have graduated during the last academic year. No one who has started graduate studies is eligible for consideration (except in cases where the student has completed a joint bachelors/masters degree program). The program accepts applications only through participating universities via designated nominating officials.

How do I apply if I've already graduated?

If you graduated during the previous academic year and have not started graduate studies, you may apply through the university from which you graduated.

How do I obtain an application?

Application forms, procedures and information are available through designated college/university nominating officials. Due to the nomination process and varying on-campus application procedures, the Carnegie Endowment is unable to send applications directly to students.

Is the application available online?

Due to the nomination process, the application is not available online. Applications are available through designated school nominating officials, who are most familiar with the particular school's nomination process. Please visit our list of nominating officials on Carnegie's website for more information.

Can applications be submitted electronically?

Yes, we will accept completed applications sent electronically by the university nominating official.

I cannot obtain an official transcript by the deadline. What should I do?

The program accepts unofficial transcripts.

Who is my university's nominating official?

In many cases, information is available in career services, internship or fellowship offices and/or political science departments. See our list of participating schools for the list of nominating officials on Carnegie's website.

Should the nominating official write a statement of nomination?

A statement from a nominating official (unless it is 1 of the 2 required references) is not considered in the application process.

May I apply for the Gaither Junior Fellow Program directly to the Carnegie Endowment?

The Gaither Junior Fellows Program is competitive and, as such, the Carnegie Endowment relies on participating universities to nominate uniquely qualified students. We are unable to accept applications directly from students. Students should consult their university on the nomination process.

When is the application deadline?

The program's deadline is January 15th (or the Friday before if the 15th falls on a weekend or holiday). However, most schools set an earlier deadline (some as early as November) to receive and review applications. Consult your university for application deadlines and details on the school's application process.

If a student is interested in more than one program, how should they proceed?

Students who are interested in more than one program have to make a decision to apply under one program. Your nominating official should be able to help you determine which program is the best fit for you.

Are applicants interviewed for the program?

The Selection Committee chooses approximately 3-4 applicants per position for interview. "Finalists" are interviewed in February and early March.

What arrangements will be made if a student is abroad while interviews are taking place?

All interviews will take place via video or phone regardless of location at the time of the interview. Appropriate arrangements will be made for students in a difficult time zone.

As a Gaither Junior Fellow, what kind of work will I do?

Gaither Junior Fellows provide research assistance to scholars working in the Carnegie Endowment programs. You may learn more about our programs by visiting www.CarnegieEndowment.org. Gaither Junior Fellows have the opportunity to conduct research for books, co-author journal articles and policy papers, participate in meetings with high-level officials, contribute to congressional testimony and organize briefings attended by scholars, journalists and government officials.

Can I apply if I have a disability?

All applications will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, protected veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other protected group.

What are the criteria upon which applications are considered?

The application process is highly competitive. Approximately 5% of applicants are ultimately selected for positions. Applications are judged on the quality of the written essay, related academic study and/or work experience, grades, recommendations, and personal interviews.

Will I be notified if I am not selected for the Program?

Those not selected for interview will be notified during the month of February. “Finalists” will be notified of selection/non-selection by March 31st.

When does the fellowship begin?

All fellowships begin on August 1st. Junior Fellows are hired for approximately one year.

Are Gaither Junior Fellows paid?

Positions are paid, full-time positions for one year. Gaither Junior fellows are currently paid a gross salary of $3,200.00 per month ($39,000 per year). A full benefits package is also provided.
