About the Author

Martha Brill Olcott, a specialist in Central Asian and Caspian affairs and interethnic relations in the Soviet successor states, joined the Carnegie Endowment in 1995. She is also a professor of political science at Colgate University. Olcott codirects the Carnegie Moscow Center's Project on Ethnicity and Politics in the former Soviet Union, which organizes seminars and conferences, and creates publications on problems of state building in multiethnic Soviet successor states and on regional and ethnic conflicts within Russia. She has previously served as a special consultant to Acting Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger and as director of the Central Asian American Enterprise Fund.

Olcott received her graduate education at the University of Chicago and has been a member of the faculty at Colgate University since 1975. A prolific author on Central Asian affairs, her books include Kazakhstan: Unfulfilled Promise (Carnegie Endowment, 2002); Getting It Wrong: Regional Cooperation and the Commonwealth of Independent States, coauthored with Anders Åslund and Sherman Garnett (Carnegie Endowment, 1999); and Russia after Communism, edited with Anders Åslund (Carnegie Endowment, 1999).

Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

The Carnegie Endowment is a private, nonprofit organization dedicated to advancing cooperation between nations and promoting active international engagement by the United States. Founded in 1910, its work is nonpartisan and dedicated to achieving practical results.

Through research, publishing, convening, and, on occasion, creating new institutions and international networks, Endowment associates shape fresh policy approaches. Their interests span geographic regions and the relations between governments, business, international organizations, and civil society, focusing on the economic, political, and technological forces driving global change. Through its Carnegie Moscow Center, the Endowment helps to develop a tradition of public policy analysis in the states of the former Soviet Union and to improve relations between Russia and the United States. The Endowment publishes Foreign Policy, one of the world's leading magazines of international politics and economics.
